These Amazing Shadows
The Movies That Make America
Directors: Kurt Norton & Paul Mariano, 88 min. PBS, 2011 Sundance film festival with Phil Harwood, film historian

Sunday, May 6, 2 pm
What do the films Casablanca, Blazing Saddles, and West Side Story have in common? Besides being popular, they have also been deemed “culturally, historically, or aesthetically significant,” by the Library of Congress and listed on the National Film Registry. The history and importance of The Registry, a roll call of American cinema treasures, reflects the diversity of film, and indeed the American experience. The current list of 525 films includes selections from every genre—documentaries, home movies, Hollywood classics, avant-garde, newsreels, and silent films. American movies tell us much about ourselves; not just what we did, but what we thought, what we felt & feared, and what we aspire to.

Mr. Harwood will lead a discussion after the film.
No tickets necessary.

In its second printing, this book tells the heart-wrenching story of a love affair begun in pre-WWII Prague that was interrupted by fear and hatred. The Lost Wife is not just the story of a sixty-year love affair, but also an exploration of the power and durability of the artistic spirit and its need to create and document, even under the most horrific conditions.

“Staggeringly evocative, romantic, heartrending, sensual, and beautifully written.”—John Lescroart, NY Times

The Steins Collect: Matisse, Picasso, and the Parisian Avant-Garde

Wednesday, May 9, 1 pm
American expatriates in bohemian Paris when the 20th century was young, the Steins, writer Gertrude, her brothers Leo and Michael and Michael’s wife, Sarah, were among the first to recognize the talents of avant-garde painters like Henri Matisse and Pablo Picasso. Through their friendship and patronage, they helped spark an artistic revolution. The Steins Collect offers a rare, in-depth encounter with the artworks and the extraordinary people behind the birth of modern art.

Book Review & Discussion

Salvage the Bones by Jesmyn Ward

With Ben Eilbott
Winner of 2011 National Book Award
A hurricane is building over the Gulf of Mexico, threatening the coastal town of Bois Sauvage, Mississippi. Twelve days make up the novel’s framework about an unforgettable family-motherless children sacrificing for one another as they can, protecting and nurturing, where love is scarce. A big-hearted novel, it is a wrenching look at the lonesome, brutal realities of rural poverty.

Author Jesmyn Ward is a former Stegner fellow at Stanford and Grisham Writer-in-Residence at the University of Mississippi. She is an Assistant Professor at the University of South Alabama. Ben Eilbott is a retired NYC principal and President of the Board of Trustees.

A Tale of Love and Darkness by Amos Oz
Discussion leader: Candace Plotsker-Herman

Monday, April 23, 1 pm

Tragic, comic, and utterly honest, A Tale of Love and Darkness is at once a family saga and a magical self-portrait of a writer who witnessed the birth of a nation and lived through its turbulent history.

Caleb’s Crossing by Geraldine Brooks
Discussion leader: Ellen Getreu

Monday, May 21, 1 pm

Pulitzer Prize winner Geraldine Brooks came to live on Martha’s Vineyard in 2006. In her travels, she ran across a map by the island’s native Wampanoag people that marked the birthplace of Caleb, the first Native American to graduate Harvard College in 1665. Her interest piqued, she unearthed his thin history, immersing herself in the records of his tribe, of the white families that settled the island in the 1640s, and 17th-century Harvard.

"...its questions of the power and cost of knowledge resound most profoundly not in Harvard’s halls, but in the fire of a Wampanoag medicine man.”

Nemesis by Philip Roth
Discussion leader: Jane Shapiro

Monday, June 11, 1 pm

The novel visits a time and place when a monumental health crisis dominated the way people led their day-to-day lives. Newark, New Jersey, in the early 1940s experienced, as WWII was looking better, a scare as deadly as warfare. The city has been hit by an epidemic of polio. Of course, at that time, how the disease spread and its cure were unknown. The city is in a panic, with residents so suspicious of other individuals and ethnic groups that emotions quickly escalate into hostility and even rage.

“...When an opportunity presents itself to leave the city for work in a Catskills summer camp, Bucky is torn between personal safety and personal duty.” —Brad Hooper, Booklist

Estate Planning for Women (And the Men Who Love Them)
With Debra Jacobs, author Estate Planning Smarts For Baby Boomers and Their Parents

Thursday, May 3, 7:30 pm

Estate planning is important for both sexes, but for various reasons it affects women more profoundly. As a group, women live longer and earn less than men, often spending their final years without a spouse or partner. Whether you are creating a plan for the first time or revising one, this program will cover key issues such as: I don’t have an estate, so why do I need estate planning? Aren’t trusts just for wealthy people? My mother wants to add my name to her bank and brokerage accounts—good idea?, How do I start a conversation with a spouse or parent about estate planning?

Flower of God: A Jewish Family’s 3,000-year Journey from Spice to Medicine By Dr. Herbert Ausubel, MD

Thursday, May 10, 1 pm

Dr. Herbert Ausubel’s saga of his family history is a captivating story of the Jewish experience, at once universal and unique. It is Everyman’s tale, and the family’s struggles are immediately recognized by anyone who knows something of the immigrant’s journey, whatever the ethnicity.

Dr. Ausubel comes from a family of writers and scientists. He trained as a historian before attending Harvard Medical School. Dr. Ausubel practices Hematology and Internal Medicine in Valley Stream, NY.
