Silence is Golden - Let’s Hear it for the Silent Films!
With Ben Model, pianist and silent film historian
And Philip Harwood, film historian
■ Sunday, March 7, 2 pm

The Cameraman
Starring Buster Keaton, Marceline Day, Harold Goodwin,
Directed by Edward Sedgwick, Written by Clyde Bruckman, Joseph Farnham; 1928, 67 min.

The Cameraman is the best of Keaton and the first film he made with MGM, now that the Joseph Schenck studio had closed. In the film Keaton plays a street photographer who, smitten with a receptionist at a newsreel company, strives to become a newsreel cameraman. An elegant, romantic comedy with a subtle, expressive, fine tuned performance by Keaton.

One Week
Starring Buster Keaton, Sybil Seely, Joe Roberts
Directed by Edward f. Cline, Buster Keaton, written by Edward F. Cline; 1920, 22 min.

Keaton was now out on his own, no longer working with Fatty Arbuckle. One Week was his first independent film. One Week is definitive of Buster Keaton’s style. His stunts in this movie did not rely on editing; the house really did turn, the train sequence was real. Newlyweds Keaton and Seely receive as a wedding gift a ‘house-in-a-box’ and a building lot.

When Wanderers Cease to Roam: A Traveler’s Journal
By Vivian Swift
■ Thursday, February 4, 1 pm

Vivian Swift racked up twenty-three temporary addresses in twenty years. Following a lifetime of trekking across the globe, she finally dropped her well-worn futon mattress and rucksack in a small town on the edge of the Long Island Sound. She spent the next decade quietly taking stock of her life, her immediate surroundings, and, finally, what it means to call a place a home.

The result is When Wanderers Cease to Roam. Filled with watercolors of beautiful local landscapes, seasonal activities, and small, overlooked pleasures of easy living, each chapter chronicles, month by month, the beautifully mundane perks of remaining at home—from curious notices in the local paper to the variations of autumnal clouds. This is truly a beautiful, gem of a book that you will take your time to read and enjoy. Ms. Swift will discuss her book and illustrations using a multi-media presentation.

SPEAKER’S SERIES

The Golden Age of Television

What Made the 1950s So Special for American TV
With Prof. Brian Rose, Fordham University

Tuesday, March 9, 1 pm

American television was ready to launch in the late 1930s but World War II interrupted its progress. By the 1950s television offered a variety of programs and live original dramas. By the end of the 1950s, the era of live TV theater was over. New York City was no longer the center of TV production. This lecture will examine this intriguing era of TV and why it was so short lived.

Brian Rose is a Professor in the Department of Communication and Media Studies at Fordham University. He has written several books on television history, genres, and cultural programming.

How the Internet Changed the Media

Why Newspaper, Music, and Television Will Never Be the Same
With Prof. Brian Rose, Fordham University

Tuesday, March 23, 1 pm

This illustrated lecture will examine the many ways the Internet has radically transformed the “old” media of newspapers, magazines, the recording industry, film, radio, and television. Will newsstands and bookstore disappear as fast as record stores? Will primetime television vanish?

A CELEBRATION OF INDIAN ART & CULTURE
IN COOPERATION WITH THE 5 TOWNS INDIAN ASSOCIATION

Beyond the Saree: Indian Clothing and Fashion from 1500 B.C. to the present
With Dr. Rohini B. Ramanathan

Thursday, January 28, 1 pm

A multi-media presentation including 10-12 sample ensembles of clothing on display. An audience member will be invited to participate in a saree wrapping!

Besides working in business, as a writer, and professor at the Fashion Institute of Technology for many years, Dr. Ramanathan is also a talented Indian singer and musician. She has taught Indian classical music at the New School for Social Research in Manhattan.

Oye Lucky! Lucky Oye!- Film with English Subtitles

Sunday, February 28, 2 pm

Starring Abhay Deol, Paresh Rawal, Neeta Chandra
Directed by Dibakar Banerjee
Hindi, with English subtitles, 121 minutes

Oye Lucky, Lucky Oye tells the story of a loveable con-man Lucky Singh (Abhay Deol). Such is his charm that even the police are fond of him. The film is the journey of Lucky from a middle class boy to becoming a small time crook to notoriety and faux celebrity and the people he encounters in this journey. The film addresses class envy and conflict, family dynamics, lower middle class aspirations, thwarted ambitions, and the nature of celebrity.

Family Planning
By Karan Mahajan

Thursday, March 4, 1 pm

Rakesh Ahuja, a Government Minister in New Delhi, is beset by problems: 13 children and another on the way; a wife who mourns the loss of her favorite TV star; and a teenage son with some really strong opinions about family planning.

Born in 1984, Karan Mahajan grew up in New Delhi. A graduate of Stanford University, he now lives in Brooklyn.

“Sharply written, bracingly funny, and unexpectedly moving, Karan Mahajan combines ‘take no prisoners’ satire with haunting insights into the human condition.” – Manil Suri, author of The Death of Vishnu.

THE HOLOCAUST  As seen through two different writers

Sarah’s Key by Tatiana de Rosnay
With Dr. Annette Labovitz
Thursday, March 11, 1 pm
Julia Jarmond, an American by birth, writes for an American magazine and her editor assigns her to cover the 60th anniversary of the Vél’d’Hiv’ roundups.

...”Tatiana de Rosnay has captured the insane world of the Holocaust and the efforts of the few good people who stood up against it... It is a book that makes us sensitive to how much evil occurred and also to how much willingness to do good also existed in that world.” —Rabbi Jack Riemer, South Florida Jewish Journal

The Book Thief by Markus Zusak
With Ben Ellobt
Monday, March 15, 1 pm
Death meets the book thief, a 9-year-old girl named Liesel Meminger, when he comes to take her little brother, and she becomes a force in his life, despite his efforts to resist her. Death watches the girl, who can’t yet read, steal a gravedigger’s instruction manual. She seems to sense she’ll need the comfort of words during the hardships ahead. And there are plenty to come.

“Death is not a sentimental storyteller, but he does attend to an array of satisfying details, giving Liesel’s story all the nuances of chance, folly, and fulfilled expectation that it deserves. An extraordinary narrative.”
—Francisca Goldsmith, Berkeley Public Library

The White Tiger
by Aravind Adiga
Discussion leader: Edna Ritzenberg
Monday, February 1, 1 pm
Set in India, Balram, a chauffeur, murders his employer, justifying his crime as the act of a “social entrepreneur.” In a series of letters to the Premier of China, in anticipation of the leader’s upcoming visit to Balram’s homeland, Balram, the chauffeur, recounts his transformation from an honest, hardworking boy growing up in rural India where education and electricity are equally scarce to a determined killer.

“Adiga’s message isn’t subtle or novel, but Balram’s appealingly sardonic voice and acute observations of the social order are both winning and unsettling.”
— The New Yorker

That Old Cape Magic
by Richard Russo
Discussion leader: Candace Plotzker-Herman
Monday, March 1, 1 pm
That Old Cape Magic is a novel of deep introspection, of a middle-aged man confronting his parents and their failed marriage, his own troubled one, his daughter’s new life and, finally, what it was he thought he wanted and what in fact he has.

Richard Russo, a Pulitzer Prize winner, tells a story, which has moments of great comedy and even hilarity alternating with others of rueful understanding and throat tightening sadness, and an ending that is surprising and uplifting.

Cyberbullying continues…

PART I: Cyberbulling Prevention Series by Films Media Group

Cyberbullies: Taking A Stand

In this program, Dr. James Shaw, author of Jack and Jill: Why They Kill, explains how to confront and counter bullying in the nation’s schools. Candid interviews with bullied students including Evan Ramsey, convicted of killing his school’s principal and a classmate, as well as with two reformed bullies—one male, one female—provide a wide-ranging peer perspective on school violence. Students also share their successes as part of anti-bullying and peer mediation programs in their schools.

PART II: Sexting and Cyberbullying

With speaker: John Dockswell, Police Officer, Nassau County Community Affairs Division

Officer Dockswell will present a film about Sexting and speak about the subject and its role in cyberbullying. Officer Dockswell has a 4 year degree in criminal justice from CW Post and a Masters Degree in elementary education from Dowling College. He is also a parent of two teenage children. Since he joined the Community Affairs Division in June 2009, he has been inundated with requests by school districts to present his program on Sexting and Cyberbullying.
