Intergenerational Science Program
How to Build Your Own Incredible Telescope with Kevin Manning, Astronomer
■ Monday, April 11, 6 pm
An introduction to telescope types, function, performance, and accessories will help participants choose a telescope wisely. Then, a detailed description of steps in constructing your own powerful telescope will be enhanced with clear illustrations and numerous photographs taken throughout the entire process A-Z. It’s so easy a 3rd grader can do this! Following the presentation, a model telescope just like the one you can build will be set up outdoors for viewing the Moon, the rings of Saturn and other beautiful objects in the night sky, weather permitting.
Kevin Manning is an astronomer, having worked as a consultant with NASA, the Chandra X-Ray Observatory launched on the space shuttle with the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics, and other ground-based observatories. Kevin was both a Wright Fellow and an Einstein Fellow, and did some work with Brookhaven National Laboratory.

One Island, One Book
Leaving Time
by Jodi Picoult
■ Monday, April 11, 1 pm
HWPL Readers Choice Book
Discussion leader: Edna Ritzenberg
Alice Picot’s stories often reinforce the bond between mother and child. The back story to this book is carefully researched facts and anecdotes about elephants; the creatures’ vast cognitive and emotional intelligence is moving and amazing.
Jodi Picoult is the bestselling author of 23 novels. She was born and raised in Nesconset, Long Island, studied creative writing with Mary Morris at Princeton, and had two short stories published in Seventeen magazine while still a student. Following her graduation she worked as a technical writer on Wall Street, a copy editor for an ad agency, textbook editor, and an 8th grade English teacher. She pursued her masters in education at Harvard.
Married to Tim Van Leer, whom she met at Princeton, she wrote Songs of the Humpback Whale while pregnant with their first child. She has also written 5 issues of the Wonder Woman comic book series. She has won numerous awards; from the Alex Award to the Young Adult Library Services Association to 2013-2014 New Hampshire Literary Award for Outstanding Literary Merit.
She lives in New Hampshire with her husband, their 3 kids, two springer spaniels, two rescue puppies, two donkeys, two geese, ten chickens. a smattering of ducks, and the occasional Holstein. (See p. 7 for more information)

Mafia Mythology and History

with Prof. Stanislao G. Pugliese

Wednesday, June 1, 7 pm

Does American culture have an obsession with the Mafia? If so, why? Is the mobster simply the descendent of the cowboy, or something else? Why is the concept and perception of the Mafia different in Italy? This informal lecture examines the historical and sociological origins of organized crime in Sicily (Mafia), Naples (Camorra), Calabria (Ndrangheta), compared to the United States. A central concern will be with representations of the Mafia in cinema and popular culture.

Stanislao G. Pugliese is Professor of European History and the Queensboro Unico Distinguished Professor of Italian Studies at Hofstra University.

LONG ISLAND READS 2016

Leaving Time by Jodi Picoult
Discussion leader: Edna Ritzenberg

Monday, April 11, 1 pm
Teenager Jenna Metcalf was just 3 years old when her mother, Alice, disappeared from an elephant sanctuary where she was a researcher. Ten years later Jenna takes up the search for her mother, beginning by reading her old journals about elephant grief, which hint at reasons for her mother’s disappearance. She is aided by a psychic, a private detective who failed to find her mother, and the infamous journals.

As the facts come together, each chapter is from the point of view of one of the three characters and Alice’s journals, heading the story toward a thrilling conclusion with a big final twist at the end!

“Piercing and uplifting…a smart, accessible yarn with a suspenseful puzzle at its core.”
—The Boston Globe

The Betrayers by David Bezmozgis
Discussion leader: Mira Rosenfeld Sennett

Monday, May 9, 11 am *

In a whirling, 24 hours, Baruch Kotler, a Soviet Jewish dissident finds himself a disgraced Israeli politician for his refusal to back down on his contrary position on the settlements of the West Bank. After his affair with a young mistress is revealed, the couple escapes to Yalta, where he meets his friend who 40 years ago was instrumental to sending him to the Gulag. His problems are compounded by his son’s problems with the Israeli army. A stubborn, wry, self knowing man, Baruch is a great character of today’s fiction.

Author David Bezmozgis tells his story with elegance, profound in its understanding of the human heart.

A powerful tale of morality and sacrifice which is unforgettable. “The Betrayers designates Bezmozgis a literary heir to Philip Roth.”

My Name is Lucy Barton by Elizabeth Strout
Discussion leader: Candace Plotksker-Herman

Monday, June 6, 1 pm
Another book by the author of Olive Kitteridge, The Burgess Boys, My Name is Lucy Barton shows how a simple hospital visit becomes a conduit to the most tender of relationships—between a mother and daughter.

As Lucy is recovering from a simple operation, her estranged mother comes to visit her. Below the surface lies a tension and longing that has affected every aspect of Lucy’s life; her escape from a troubled family, her desire to be a writer, her marriage, and her love for her daughters. It all comes together through the astonishing storytelling voice of Lucy herself; steely observant, with a deep sense of humanity.

“It’s not a scintilla of sentimentality in this exquisite love. Instead, in its careful words and vibrating silences, My Name is Lucy Barton offers us a rare wealth of emotion, from darkest suffering to “I was so happy. Oh I was so happy”—simple joy.”
